SUICIDE

"What has become of that greyhound you had?"
"Killed himself!"
"Really?"
"Yes, tried to catch a fly on the small of his back and miscalculated. Bit himself in two."—London Tit-Bits.

Ole Hanson, the new mayor of Seattle, and one of the really unique characters in the political history of the west, says the women elected him, and that he intends to see that a woman is added to each board and commission in that city just as fast as vacancies occur. So far he has added them to the Park and Library boards, and to the board that has to do with architectural requirements.

"What's the matter with those senators up there," says Mayor Hanson, "that they don't come through with the suffrage amendment? Women are better citizens than men. They are more intelligent—yes, I mean it. They are more particular who and what they vote for; they are more independent. The women of this country are entitled to full suffrage; the federal amendment must be passed."

Recognizing that the cost of living is proceeding on the principle that there is always room at the top, Mayor Hanson has raised the salaries of 3000 city employees $15 a month and set $105 as the minimum salary for stenographers.

Seattle is one of the towns that intends to "come clean." Immediately after his election last spring he called a conference of leading men and women and they took up the subject of prostitution, abatement laws, fines, imprisonment and all the old futile methods of dealing with this ancient evil. They are having a bill drafted which will be submitted to the next legislature. It deals with this matter in a practical way and, they believe, will secure beneficial results.
